The ethnic composition of students at College of the Canyons has changed dramatically since 1970. The most striking changes are in the increases in Latino students and decreases in the proportion of White students. In just the past 13 years, the percentage of Latino students has increased 387 percent. The College no longer has a majority group.

Source: CCCCO UST Files, California Community College Chancellor’s Office, MIS 320 File & Financial Aid Office