

A Special Notice Concerning Classes

College of the Canyons' class offerings has been greatly reduced.

Because of the reduced availability of classes, there is a very good chance that by the time high school students can register, the majority of those classes will be filled with college students. High school students, who have not attended College of the Canyons in past semesters, must go through assessment tests and orientations prior to registration, in addition to the steps detailed on the admissions website.

As such, we feel obligated to let you know that the chance of high school students getting into classes is not very promising. High school counselors and principals have been informed and will inform their students.
