

RAP SHEET

College of the Canyons | Administration of Justice

Jobs in Crime & Intelligence Analysis

Crime & Intelligence Analysts are generally civilian positions in law enforcement and intelligence. Analyst positions can be found on the federal level, state level, regional level, municipal and local levels as well as in the private sector!

Federal jobs are posted on the USAJOBS website and are updated regularly.

Now Hiring!!!

Police agencies across the region and State are currently hiring! Many of these listings are published by POST, which is linked in our Dept Webpage.

Dept. Webpage

Our Dept webpage is updated regularly. Find us at <https://www.canyons.edu/academics/justice/index.php>.

Certificate in Crime & Intelligence Analysis

The Crime & Intelligence Analysis Certificate (CIAC) program at College of the Canyons will provide practical instruction in crime analysis, criminal investigative analysis, organized crime intelligence analysis, law enforcement research, and statistical methods. The included courses will focus on (1) the analysis of the Part I and Part II crime trends most commonly encountered by patrol officers and investigators such as murder, aggravated assault, rape, robbery, burglary, and theft, and (2) crimes investigated by intelligence officers such as criminal networks, organized crime groups, narcotics, gangs, smuggling, trafficking, pirated goods, money laundering, and other illicit rings.

In the Spotlight:
Dept. of Justice
O.I.G. Mariette
Boutros

Mariette Boutros came to COC already with her B.A. degree from U.C. San Diego, exploring careers in the criminal justice. She took advantage of some of the opportunities available to her through the Admin of Justice program and found herself in a federal internship doing crime and intelligence analysis with the U.S. Dept. of Justice, Office of Inspector General (OIG), LA office. Federal internships are paid positions while enrolled as a full-time student. Mariette enrolled in a Master's degree program in Intelligence Management at Henley Putnam University, now National American University. The Special Agent in Charge (SAC) in Los Angeles was so impressed with Mariette, that he offered her a full time job as an analyst with OIG! Mariette is the perfect example of what happens when preparation and proper mental attitude meets opportunity!

The CIAC program is designed with the community and future in mind. Incorporating social justice concerns and utilizing evidence-based theories, this program directly correlates to the current push for implicit bias training in the criminal justice field. Crime analysis is one of the fastest growing sectors of law enforcement in the world, and investigative profiling is the only empirically based investigative method accepted internationally. Combined, these two fields represent the future of the criminal justice system.

Upon completion of the Certificate in Crime & Intelligence Analysis program, graduates will receive a Certificate from College of the Canyons and be better prepared for entry level positions as crime and/or intelligence analysts.

Program Highlights include completion in an accelerated cohort nights-weekend program, the only one like it serving the San Fernando Valley, Northeast Los Angeles County, Ventura County, Kern County, and portions of San Bernardino County. There are 10 required classes. All instructors are all current and experienced Crime and Intelligence Analysts, working in the field.

It should be noted that Crime and Intelligence Analysts are civilian positions in law enforcement. Analysts are not sworn officers. They do not attend a police academy, carry firearms, or effect arrests. The criminal justice system consists of a wide variety of career paths. The Crime and Intelligence Analysis program is just another example of exciting and rewarding careers available to our Administration of Justice students here at COC!

