Introduction
Hello and welcome to BUS 160, Business Ethics! My name is Barry S. Morinaka and I look forward to working with each of you. As you will see (or have) in my biography I am extremely interested and excited about the online learning/teaching environment. I have also been practicing business and international law, for more than 35 years and will be happy to share my experiences and would like you to share yours while we explore the business world's changing environment. I can assure you that we "all" have valuable experiences to share whether they're in business, law, learning, teaching, or any other endeavor; they each deal with the topic of “business.” I look forward to learning with you as we share our collective experiences. This syllabus outlines how the course will evolve over the next several weeks and what I expect of you. I have also posted a “Summary of "Assignments and Due Dates" for your reference. You may want to use this as an assignments completion check sheet. It might be helpful if you read through this syllabus along with the assignment list for a cross-reference.

Course Description:
Presents different schools of ethical thought applicable in the business environment, including ethical issues and methodologies used for appropriate conduct. Current cases and fact scenarios are presented along with historical examples to demonstrate their effect on contemporary ethical dilemmas.

Course Information
Student Learning Outcome:

1. Interpret, compare, and contrast the philosophies of various classical and contemporary schools of ethical thought as related to business practices.
2. Assess and evaluate fact-based business scenarios in order to identify ethical issues.
3. Analyze and evaluate ethical issues in a commercial environment and apply appropriate theories, rules and guidelines to resolve ethical conflicts.

Quizzes and exams are online. Not proctored.
