Courses Titles: Introduction to Sociology, Intimate Relationships and Families, Introduction to Women’s Studies, Introduction to Criminology
Course Code: SOCI 101, 103, 200, 250
Professor Contact Info:
Robert Wonser
Office: SCOH 306C
Phone: (661) 362 - 3595
Email: robert.wonser@canyons.edu

Format: Online
Course Length: Full semester / Late Start / Go / Winter/Summer

Introduction
Hi all! My name is Robert Wonser and I earned my BS in Business Administration with an option in Marketing and his MA in Sociology from CSUN. My research interests include culture, mass media, subcultures, popular culture, youth culture, consumerism, social stratification, criminology, and social psychology. I have written about the intersections of popular culture and deviance and the representations in zombie cinema as depicting of global pandemic and its implications for selfhood. Currently my spare time is spent with my daughters who I’m training to be sociologists.

This class will serve as your introduction to Sociology (either introduction, the sociological study of families, gender or crime); you are in for a treat! Sociology is the best subject! Literally, it is the best. I am not kidding; the best. Everything you are interested in, sociology has something to offer. We’ll look at some fascinating topics in this class including (but not limited to) the big three: race, class and most importantly, gender. What does sociology have to offer about gender, race, class, crime, family?!, don’t you already know this? Absolutely not! So much of our world is taken for granted. Sociology actively changes that, forces interrogation and a critical awareness. But there is so much more. Using your newly discovered sociological imagination everything you knew is open for scrutiny and the mundane becomes extraordinary. Enjoy!

Course Description
SOCI 101: Examines small group interactions and cultural patterns of American and other societies using the conceptual, theoretical, and methodological principles and applications to explain how values, roles, norms, social interaction, and social inequality as well as other concepts influence individuals, groups, and society.

SOCI 103: Examines the various forms of intimate partner relationships that exist within a diverse, multicultural society. Social, cultural, and political constructs that apply to the definition, status, and legality of human partnerships are analyzed.
SOCI 200: Provides an overview of the academic field of women’s studies, including the social and cultural consequences of living in a "gendered world." Socialization, communication, politics, crime, sexuality, and religion are examined, as well as the historical and cross-cultural aspects of gender relationships.

SOCI 250: Explores the scientific study of crime and criminality and the definition of crime and its violations as well as the laws and methods used to control criminal behavior. Formerly SOCI-150.

Course Information
This course is completely online class and will meet through CANVAS through the COC website from. We will NOT meet in person. Please ensure you have logged into Canvas (https://coc.instructure.com) no later than day two of the term; if you do not you will be DROPPED from this course. Please ensure that you are able to accommodate yourself to the confines of online learning. This means not only reading online, a computer with internet access, but the desire and self-motivation to actively participate and learn. You must be able to login at least every other day to keep up with class discussions (both your own and your classmates) as well as keep up with the readings. Just because this class is online does not mean it’s easier. There are trade-offs between the convenience of home and saving gas and time. Please, please, please ensure you fully understand what this means before attempting this class. If you have questions on this you can email me for clarification.

Having said all that, this class will be fun. You will learn a lot of highly relevant ideas that directly apply to your everyday life that you were completely unaware of. The journey into a new world (the world you think you are familiar with) begins today. Enjoy!

For Intersession (Summer, Winter or condensed or late start semester courses)
This course is completely online Summer/Winter/Late start class and will meet through CANVAS through the COC website from. We will NOT meet in person. Please ensure you have logged into Canvas (https://coc.instructure.com) no later than day two of the term; if you do not you will be DROPPED from this course. Please ensure that you are able to accommodate yourself to the confines of online learning. This means not only reading online, a computer with internet access, but the desire and self-motivation to actively participate and learn. You must be able to login at least every other day to keep up with class discussions (both your own and your classmates) as well as keep up with the readings. Just because this class is online does not mean it’s easier. There are trade-offs between the convenience of home and saving gas and time. Please, please, please ensure you fully understand what this means before attempting this class. If you have questions on this you can email me for clarification.

Having said all that, this class will be fun. You will learn a lot of highly relevant ideas that directly apply to your everyday life that you were completely unaware of. The journey into a new world (the world you think you are familiar with) begins today. Enjoy!

Textbook information
SOCI 101, 103 and 200: Open Educational Resources (OER) Free Text Available through Canvas. The free open source textbook is on the course Canvas shell. You may print a limited number of pages free each day in the ASG computer lab located in the Student Center. You may print (for a fee) in the TLC. You are expected to have read the pertinent chapters prior to the start of that unit.

Additional Readings/PDFs There will also be assigned readings found in PDF form and available through the course’s Canvas shell or through links to articles on the internet.

SOCI 250:

Additional Readings/PDFs There will also be assigned readings found in PDF form and available through the course’s Canvas shell or through links to articles on the internet.

Other relevant course information

After reading the message below, please feel free to email me with questions at this email address: rober.twonser@canyons.edu. I will strive to answer emails I receive prior to the first day of class within a day or two. Please be sure to include your full name, the class, and the section number in your emails. Please do NOT email me to say, “May I add your class?” Read this letter in its entirety. This course is completely online class and will meet through Canvas through the COC website. We will NOT meet in person. Please ensure you have logged into Canvas (https://coc.instructure.com/) no later than day two of the term; if you do not you will be DROPPED from this course. Please ensure that you are able to accommodate yourself to the confines of online learning. This means, not only reading online, a computer with internet access, but the desire and self-motivation to actively participate and learn. You must be able to login at least every other day to keep up with class discussions (both your own and your classmates) as well as keep up with the readings. Just because this class is online does not mean it’s easier. In some ways it is more difficult than face-to-face courses because it requires unique skills and self-motivation. There are trade-offs between the convenience of home and saving gas and time. Having said all that, this class will be fun. You will learn a lot of highly relevant ideas that directly apply to your everyday life that you were completely unaware of. The journey into a new world (the world you think you are familiar with) begins today. Enjoy!

Remember that for each three-unit sociology class you should expect to spend nine hours per week on the class in a full semester.  This includes reading, taking exams, etc. I want you to be successful and starting off on the wrong foot is usually not a good indicator of success. Online courses require a high level of self-initiative and they are well suited to students who possess this quality. This is for a standard 15-week semester. Just because it is online does NOT mean we do less work, we do the same amount of work online.
To do well in this class you must have access to a dependable computer as well as reliable access to the internet. The school has many, many computers available for your use—check out the library, TLC, and ASG computer lab. Your public library also probably has computers for use, but the time allowed may be limited.

Be sure to check out CANVAS for updates and course materials.

Part of being successful in an online class is learning the material and the other part is being comfortable with the format so that you can access the material. If you are new to online courses I strongly suggest you investigate some of the online tutorials.

For Intersession (Summer/Winter/Late Start/Condensed) Sections:

After reading the message below, please feel free to email me with questions at this email address: robert.wonser@canyons.edu. I will strive to answer emails I receive prior to the first day of class within a day or two. Please be sure to include your full name, the class, and the section number in your emails. Please do NOT email me to say, “May I add your class?” Read this letter in its entirety. This course is completely online class and will meet through Canvas through the COC website. We will NOT meet in person. Please ensure you have logged into Canvas (https://coc.instructure.com/) no later than day two of the term; if you do not you will be DROPPED from this course. Please ensure that you are able to accommodate yourself to the confines of online learning. This means, not only reading online, a computer with internet access, but the desire and self-motivation to actively participate and learn. You must be able to login at least every other day to keep up with class discussions (both your own and your classmates) as well as keep up with the readings. Just because this class is online does not mean it’s easier. In some ways it is more difficult than face-to-face courses because it requires unique skills and self-motivation. There are trade-offs between the convenience of home and saving gas and time. Having said all that, this class will be fun. You will learn a lot of highly relevant ideas that directly apply to your everyday life that you were completely unaware of. The journey into a new world (the world you think you are familiar with) begins today. Enjoy!

Remember that for each three-unit sociology class you should expect to spend nine hours per week on the class in a full semester. This is condensed for Summer session! This includes reading, taking exams, etc. I want you to be successful and starting off on the wrong foot is usually not a good indicator of success. Online courses require a high level of self-initiative and they are well suited to students who possess this quality. This is for a standard 15-week semester, since this is a summer/Winter/late start or otherwise condensed class, it is only 5/6 weeks. This does NOT mean we do less work; we do the same amount of work in less time which means each week is far more intense than a full semester online class would be.

To do well in this class you must have access to a dependable computer as well as reliable access to the internet. The school has many, many computers available for your use—check out the library, TLC, and ASG computer lab. Your public library also probably has computers for use, but the time allowed may be limited.

Be sure to check out CANVAS for updates and course materials.
Part of being successful in an online class is learning the material and the other part is being comfortable with the format so that you can access the material. If you are new to online courses I strongly suggest you investigate some of the online tutorials.

Additional Resources

Canvas
The course can be accessed via Canvas at cv.canyons.edu on the first day of the course. Follow the login instructions at the bottom of the screen to log in. Here, you can also access Canvas user guides with helpful tips for navigating and using Canvas. For any Canvas related issues please call the Canvas Student Support line at (661)362-3344 during college business hours, or (877)889-9052 for 24/7 support.

Distance Learning
Check out the [Distance Learning website](http://Distance Learning website) for more information on a variety of topics that can help you be a successful online student such as: exam proctoring, learning styles, computer skills, and tips for student success. If this is your first online course, feel free to take our [online learning readiness assessment](http://online learning readiness assessment) to assess your skills.

The Learning Center (TLC)
The TLC provides FREE tutoring resource to COC students including:
- Face-to-face & ONLINE tutoring
- Testing Center: offers test proctoring services for courses that have required proctored exams
- Study Jam Review Sessions
- Computers with over 300 software programs
For more information visit the [TLC Website](http://TLC Website).

Disabled Students Program & Services (DSPS)
College of the Canyons DSPS provides educational services and access for eligible students with documented disabilities who intend to pursue coursework at COC. A variety of programs and services are available which afford eligible students with disabilities the opportunity to participate fully in all aspects of the college programs and activities through appropriate and reasonable accommodations. For more information on their services visit the [Disabled Students Program & Services website](http://Disabled Students Program & Services website).

Online Counseling
The Counseling Department offers appointments online. You can schedule an appointment by visiting the [Online Counseling website](http://Online Counseling website). Counselors can help you map out a plan to reach your educational goals as well as advise you on course selection and registration.