

Global Student Athlete Profile

Name: Corey Haase

Sport: Men's Golf

Major: Sociology

Country: Ballarat, Victoria, Australia

Why College of the Canyons?

Corey received multiple offers to play at different universities around the United States. He was particularly interested in College of the Canyons because of how incredibly dominate the program has been the last few years. He has had many friends from Australia that came through the program at COC and raved about their success. Corey also stated that the academics at College of the Canyons will be a great stepping stone to his future career.

Why Golf?

Back home in Australia his house backs up to a golf course. His entire family golfs, including his father and uncle who was a club pro. You could say it runs in the family. Corey started playing golf almost before he could walk and quickly developed an affinity for the sport. He is a member at three different golf clubs around Victoria.

COC Golf Head Coach:

Gary.peterson@canyons.edu

Personal Info/Goals:

Corey is attending College of the Canyons and majoring in Sociology. Once he obtains his Associates degree he would like to continue his golf career and attend a division 1 university. After he competes at the highest amateur level here in the US, he would like to turn professional in Golf. However, if golf does not work out he said he will head back to Australia and work with his family's tile and flooring business.

International Services and Program Information

<http://bit.ly/ISPwebCOC> Phone: (661) 362-3580 Fax(661) 362-5539 Email:isp.canyons.edu Contact:Adam.wilding@canyons.edu

Global Student Athlete Profile

Name: Jean-Daniel Lukubika Alves

Sport: Men's Soccer

Major: Business Accounting

Country: Paris, France

Why College of the Canyons?

After making his way to the U.S. from Paris, France Jean Daniel attended a different community college in the area. He quickly realized that it was not the best fit for him. After doing some research J.D. said, that College of the Canyons “checked all the boxes” that he wanted. He said the academics, student life, and athletics as far superior to his first college.

Why Soccer?

J.D. was born in the Democratic Republic of Congo where he started playing soccer with family and friends at the age of four. When he moved to Paris at six years old he was drawn to the intensity and strong competition of European soccer. His skills quickly improved, and knew that the U.S. was the best place to achieve his soccer goals.

COC Soccer Head Coach:
Philip.marcellin@canyons.edu

Personal Info/Goals:

J.D. is currently taking classes at College of the Canyons in Business accounting. He hopes to obtain a Graduate degree in the same field at a prestigious university after obtaining his AA. After finishing his second season of soccer he hopes to obtain a scholarship to play at a division 1 school. If soccer doesn't work out as a profession he would like to start up his own business here in the U.S.

International Services and Program Information

<http://bit.ly/ISPwebCOC> Phone:(661) 362-3580 Fax(661) 362-5539 Email:isp.canyons.edu Contact:Adam.wilding@canyons.edu

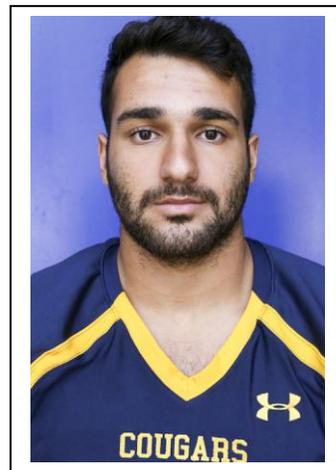

Global Student Athlete Profile

Name: Amir Mohammad Haghbin Fallah Pishkhani

Sport: Football

Major: Business Accounting

Country: Tehran, Iran

Why College of the Canyons?

After moving from Iran his senior year of high school, College of the Canyons made the most sense for Amir. He said that College of the Canyons gave him the best opportunity to achieve his educational goals in business. Amir also stated that College of the Canyons is the best place to reach his dream college, University of Southern California.

Why Football?

Amir grew up playing water polo in Iran. When he and his mother moved out to the U.S., football was the most comparable. He quickly grew to love the game and the contact. He explained that Football made him more of a man, and the strict military mentality of the game drew him in.

COC Football Head Coach:
Ted.lacenda@canyons.edu

Personal Info/Goals:

After obtaining his AA in Business from COC, Amir hopes to transfer to University of Southern California and receive a B.A in Business. His father is currently the CEO of a distribution company in Iran. After Amir gets his degree from USC, he plans to run his father's company so his parents can retire. In the future, he hopes to expand the company to include imports/exports in Dubai.

International Services and Program Information

<http://bit.ly/ISPwebCOC> Phone (661) 362-3580 Fax (661) 362-5539 Email: isp@canyons.edu Contact: Adam.wilding@canyons.edu